

Setting a background color to the entire page

To fill the entire background with color, you can use the `background-color` property in CSS. By specifying `background-color: COLOR` to the `@page` CSS pseudo-class, you can set the background color for the entire page. For example, to set the background color to “LemonChiffon”, you would write the following CSS code: `background-color: LemonChiffon`