Hanging punctuation in Latin text

The 'axf:hanging-punctuation' extension property specifies whether punctuation at the start and/or end of a line may 'hang' outside the line. Punctuation at the start or end of a line that is hung in the margin can improve the appearance of the text block, particularly for justified text. The text block can look ragged when punctuation is not hung (depending on the font, font size, line length, margins, and punctuation frequency). If axf:hanging-punctuation="none" is specified, no punctuation is hung. If 'start' is specified, punctuation at the start of a line is hung. If text-align="right" or text-align="justify" is specified together with the 'force-end' value, then punctuation at the end of a line is forced to hang. The 'first', 'allow-end', and 'last' values cause punctation to be hung only at the first or last line of the <fo:block> or when the punctuation character would not fit within the line, respectively. Multiple keywords (except 'none') can be specified. See also 'axf:hanging-punctuation' in the Manual for more information.
